NEW EXHIBITION

Snoopy and the Red Baron

October 24, 2015 through April 24, 2016

Main Gallery

Events commemorating the centennial anniversary of World War I are taking place around the globe through 2018. Schulz himself served during World War II, but he immersed himself in the history of The Great War to invent storylines for Snoopy, who imagined himself as a World War I Flying Ace. Imagining his doghouse to be a British bi-plane, Snoopy soared through the clouds in pursuit of the Red Baron. Schulz modeled this nemesis on World War I fighter pilot, Manfred von Richthofen, whose infamy lived on long after his last dogfight. Learn more about the real Red Baron, and Schulz's attention to historic detail through rare artifacts, original artworks, and an expansive selection of cartoons showcasing Snoopy's celebrated alter-ego.

This exhibition is generously sponsored by Twentieth Century Fox and Blue Sky Studios.

Saturday, October 24, 10:00 am – 1:00 pm

NEW EXHIBITION

It's Football Season, Charlie Brown

December 16, 2015 through March 28, 2016

Strip Rotation Gallery

For nearly 50 years, Peanuts readers eagerly anticipated the annual fall comic strip of Lucy pulling a football away from Charlie Brown. Taking inspiration from his childhood, Schulz remembered, "It was impossible for one boy holding a football for another to let him kick it without pulling it away. It would happen every time you went out to play football." Schulz created many other storylines centered on the Gang's gridiron efforts, including Snoopy's "Mad Punter" series of the 1960s, and Peppermint Patty's love of the game in later years.

Saturday, December 19, 10:00 am – 1:00 pm
