“There’s something funny about unrequited love—I suppose it’s because we can all identify with it.” – Charles M. Schulz

Sanctuary for the Lovelorn
Heartbreak in Peanuts
New Exhibition at the Schulz Museum
February 5 – August 11, 2014

(Santa Rosa, CA) Love is everywhere in Peanuts—Charlie Brown loves the Little Red-Haired Girl, Lucy adores Schroeder, Sally pursues Linus—but sadly these sentiments are rarely returned.

Experience the joys and sorrows of unrequited love Peanuts-style in the Charles M. Schulz Museum and Research Center’s upcoming exhibition, Heartbreak in Peanuts. Join the Peanuts characters as they continually return to their hopeless quests for love, undaunted by defeat.

Heartbreak in Peanuts, which runs February 5 through August 11, 2014, features over 70 original comic strips which focus on narratives of lost love in Peanuts. These one-sided love stories include Sally and her “Sweet Babboo,” Snoopy left standing at the altar, Lucy throwing Schroeder’s piano in the sewer, and Charlie Brown’s mission to meet the Little Red-Haired Girl.
